INTRODUCTION

Welcome to the Education Doctoral Program at DePaul University. In this handbook, you will find essential doctoral program information including but not limited to required coursework, course schedules, program strand information, admissions, timelines, degree- planning guidelines, and dissertation instructions.

The Education Doctoral Program is located within the College of Education Building at 2247 N Halsted St. Chicago, IL, 60614, and you can find the EdD Program office on the third floor in Room 339. Listed in the table below is the contact information for the EdD faculty directors for each program strand as well as the administrative and advising staff that will help you throughout your doctoral journey. Please feel free to contact us with any questions and concerns, and again, welcome to the EdD Program.

PROGRAM DESCRIPTION AND PURPOSE

The doctoral program is designed to prepare Urban Professional Multicultural Education leaders. With an emphasis on social justice and working with underserved populations, the doctoral program seeks to train educational professionals who wish to become leaders capable of transforming schools or other educational institutions. Students have ten years to complete the program and dissertation; however, occasionally, exceptions can be made in consultation with dissertation chairs to extend the term of ten years.

The goals of the EdD Program are as follows:

- Help professional practitioners make sense of the complex, dynamic, and idiosyncratic ways they experience problems in education.
- Prepare scholars who will make meaningful academic contributions to the field of education.
- Enhance students' understanding of the complex, dynamic interactions which occur between self and others and social, historical, psychological, and political constructs that shape emergent relationships in schools and other educational contexts.
- Facilitate students' understandings of the social, historical, psychological, and political nature of the relationships among individuals, groups, and society.
- Broaden and contextualize students' concepts of education so as to enhance their ability to be leaders who collaboratively facilitate the critical examination of society, educational institutions, and the nature of the learning process.
- Enhance students' capacity to examine and weigh multiple perspectives and emergent "courses of action" in order to determine alternatives that are sensitive to the school, community, and broader societal contexts.
- Extend and challenge the boundaries of students' thinking about the goals of their professional practice.
- Support students' integration of interdisciplinary bodies of knowledge in order to interpret their daily encounters, to inform their decisions, and to help them shape the nature of educational institutions and the quality of educational processes.
- Engage a cadre of educational leaders in developing the potential of relationships at the institutional, community, and society level to create multicultural contexts for learning and school transformation.

DOCTORAL STUDENT DISPOSITIONS

PROGRAM STRANDS, LICENSURES, AND ENDORSEMENTS

Program Strands

The EdD Program has three program strand options: Educational Leadership, Curriculum Studies, and Early Childhood Education. Students will complete a series of core, research, and concentration courses before beginning work on their dissertation. It should also be noted that the Early Childhood Education strand requires two internships; one in teaching and another in research.

The following sections detail each of the program strands' descriptions, degree requirements, and admissions instructions.

EDUCATIONAL LEADERSHIP

I. EdD in Educational Leadership: (20 courses or 76 quarter hours)

The Educational Leadership Program provides a rich knowledge base to analyze administrative practices and promote socially just leadership of schools and organizations with an educational purpose. This program is uniquely designed to link theory with practice and is not based on traditional assumptions about the relationships of theory with practice or on conventional notions about the status of practitioners and theorists.

The program's schedule is flexible, allowing students to attend full-time or part-time as their professional and personal schedules allow. Graduates of the program may wish to enter a new career or strengthen their current position. They may assume faculty positions in higher education, take leadership positions in local and state education agencies, or become leaders in educational policy and advocacy in organizations and institutions.

II. Degree Requirements

Students must maintain an overall GPA of 3.0 prior to the completion of 36 credit hours and 3.3 after the completion of 36 credit hours. Students are allowed no more than two grades of “C.” Upon receiving a third grade of “C,” students must retake the class in which the grade was received. CURRICULUM STUDIES

I. EdD in Curriculum Studies: 20 courses, 76 quarter hours

The Curriculum Studies Education Program encourages educators to reflect on and strengthen their own practice and to challenge themselves and their colleagues to work effectively for social justice and educational excellence. Students use critical reflection to improve practice, engage in rigorous theoretical inquiry, and identify, address, and build coalitions around opportunities and problems in education.

Curriculum decision-making is a theoretically informed, practical, and dialogic activity. We encourage educators to seek the most defensible course of action in specific circumstances; this requires a thorough understanding of the sociocultural and political context and the analytical ability to think critically about broader purposes and consequences. We consider educators to be teachers not only in the classroom, but also in a variety of settings where they interact (including in higher education, community organizations, etc.). Educational environments, especially those in urban settings, are complex; creating viable options within them requires a rich knowledge base and the ability to think conceptually. Our program provides educators with a variety of theoretical perspectives to use in analyzing educational phenomena.

II. Degree Requirements

EARLY CHILDHOOD EDUCATION

I. EdD in Early Childhood Education: 23 courses, 88 quarter hours

The Early Childhood Education concentration recognizes the current shortage of highly trained early childhood professionals for colleges and universities at the national level. The program focuses not only on analyzing theory and practice in early childhood education today, but also on the policy issues influencing the field of early childhood education.

All of the coursework in this program is designed based on best practice guidelines from a variety of leading national early childhood education professional and research organizations, such as National Association of Education of Young Children, Council for Exceptional Children and Zero to Three. The program is rooted in applied child development as well as curricular theory that embraces the notion of learner self-efficacy, inquiry-based curricula, and partnerships with families.

Recognizing the need for hands-on training in research and higher academic teaching, part of the focus of this program is on mentoring doctoral candidates in acquiring these skills through two research and teaching internships prior to their dissertation work. The program is designed to prepare early childhood professionals who might come from a variety of backgrounds such as teachers, leaders or administrators, professionals working in the early childhood or related fields, or instructors at the college level.

ECE Internships:

Students are required to complete two internships; one in research and another in teaching. Please consult the ECE director for guidance in facilitating these internships.

COLLEGE OF EDUCATION POLICIES

Student in Good Standing

Students who are not taking regular courses and are working on their dissertation must register as a student in good standing each quarter until the research is completed. This non-credit, ungraded registration provides students with an active student ID and access to all DePaul facilities and services such as the library. There is a small fee for registration. Register for the 700 Student in Good Standing course, using the letter code of your program (A&S or CS). Register only when all other coursework is completed. Approval of a student's dissertation chair is required, and must be formally obtained using a Student in Good Standing Course Registration form, which is available from the Ed.D. Program Office (COE Room 339) or online at http://education.depaul.edu/student-resources/policies-and-forms/Documents/forms_library/600_625_700_Registra.pdf

Readmission

Students who have not been enrolled in courses for three consecutive quarters, excluding summer, are automatically discontinued by the university and must apply for readmission. (Students should register for A&S 700 or CS 700, or they may request a leave of absence through Campus Connection if they are not registered for any other doctoral courses in order to not be discontinued.) All students are bound by the standards of the catalog and/or program requirements in effect at the time of readmission.

EdD Program faculty will review the petition for readmission, and if the applicant is readmitted, they will suggest any course additions to the program of study. The student may be required to take additional course work to upgrade skills and knowledge or to meet new state or other accreditation requirements. If it has been more than (or almost) 10 years since the student began his/her graduate program, the student must also submit an extension request to continue progress toward a degree. Please visit the link below for instructions for readmissions or contact the College of Education Graduate Admissions Office at (773) 325-4405.

<http://education.depaul.edu/admission-and-aid/graduate-admission/admission-requirements/Pages/default.aspx>

Extension

Students have 10 years to complete the doctoral program, beginning with the first quarter of admission. (If students deferred admission, the first quarter of attendance starts the 10-year clock.) For example, a student who begins in Fall 2010 must complete the program by Spring 2020. For students approaching this time limit, an Application for Extension must be submitted to the EdD Program Office. This should be done no later than the fall quarter of the tenth year, although earlier is preferable. The extension application includes the Request for Extension form, a letter from the student explaining a rationale for his/her request, and a letter of support from his/her dissertation chair.

Incomplete Grades

A student must request an Incomplete grade for a course and secure the instructor's permission. All grades of Incomplete must be made up by the end of the second quarter following the term in which the Incomplete grade was assigned. All remaining Incompletes will automatically convert to "F" grades.

Note: In the case of a student who has applied for graduation and who has been approved for an Incomplete in his or her final term, the Incomplete must be resolved within the four-week grace period before final degree certification.

Grade Challenges

A student who is considering a grade challenge for a College of Education course must discuss the grade with the instructor before the end of the following regular term, i.e. autumn quarter challenges must be made before the end of the spring quarter, and spring and summer quarter challenges must be made before the end of the autumn quarter. Only if the instructor is not at the university during the following regular term after the grade was issued may the student proceed to challenge the grade without meeting with the instructor. The student may then continue the challenge by submitting a written request to the Grade Challenge Review Committee in the College of Education Dean's Office. This request must be submitted within the term following the award of the disputed grade. The Committee will review all requests and an action will be taken within two months.

ADVISING AND COURSE SCHEDULES

Throughout the doctoral program, students consult with faculty advisors and their academic advisor, and these roles are detailed as follows:

Initial Faculty Advisors

Faculty advisors are assigned to new students upon acceptance into the program. The role of the initial faculty advisor is to provide general guidance. Students will be expected to select an ongoing advisor (dissertation chair) once their research interests become more focused.

Academic Advisors

The EdD Program has an assigned academic advisor through the College of Education's Advising Office. The Advising Office is located in COE suite 140. Academic Advisors help students develop a long-term plan, assist with registration issues, complete degree audits, and serve as a resource for issues related to student services.

Dissertation Chair

The dissertation chair takes the place of the initial faculty advisor; the same faculty can serve as both. See section on the Dissertation Committee.

Suggested Course Sequence

The suggested course plan for students entering their first year in Fall 2017 is as follows. This is the plan of study recommended if a student wishes to complete coursework in three years. Some courses are offered once per year and some once every other year. For that reason, careful planning is important. PROGRAM STEPS AND MILESTONES

The doctoral journey consists of a series of steps and milestones that students must complete in order to obtain the EdD degree. Many of the steps detailed below have corresponding forms which must be turned into the EdD office. Forms can be found at the following link:

<http://education.depaul.edu/student-resources/policies-and-forms/Pages/forms-library.aspx>

I. Coursework

Students should register for their courses in consultation with their academic advisor. Full-time students will take two courses per quarter and finish their coursework in approximately three years. Because not all courses are offered every year, it is very important to stay in close contact with your academic advisor when planning courses so as to select a plan that allows for a three-year completion time frame.

Once students have finished their coursework, they must sign up for the A&S/CS/ECE 700 Student in Good Standing course in order to continue to have access to DePaul University resources. Registration for this course is contingent on approval from the dissertation committee chair, and enrolled students must be making noticeable progress towards the completion of their dissertation. The student should have the corresponding form signed by his or her dissertation chair and then submit it to the EdD office.

II. Dissertation Committee

Many students work with the same committee for the candidacy paper, dissertation proposal and dissertation. The student will take the following steps to organize the committee, ideally in their second year of the program:

1. Identify a faculty member to serve as the committee chair. The student consults a faculty member, potentially interested in the student's topic. Students are encouraged to review the COE faculty web pages to find faculty members with research interests related to questions of interest to them. They may also request help from their faculty advisor. The role of the chair is to supervise the development of the student's candidacy paper, final development of the proposal for the dissertation study, and the study itself. (Preliminary development of the proposal often takes place in conjunction with previous course work, and a critical review of pertinent literature is often the focus of the candidacy paper.) The chair must be a COE faculty member currently employed full-time by DePaul.
2. Select at least two additional faculty members to the committee. The chair must approve the student's choice of at least two additional faculty members on the committee. One member of the committee must be a COE faculty member (either full-time or part-time). A second member of the committee can be from outside the COE or from an institution other than DePaul. All faculty members serving on dissertation committees must possess the terminal degree for their field of expertise. The EdD Committee must approve any exceptions to this policy. Students are expected to work closely with their chair to determine membership on the committee.
3. Submit a Committee Membership form to the EdD Program Office. Once your entire dissertation committee has been formed, obtain the signatures of the chair and all members on a Committee Membership form and submit it to the EdD Program Office.

For any exceptions to committee composition or other processes and policies related to the program, students should consult with the chair of their dissertation committee. If the membership of a student's dissertation committee has changed, the student must submit a Change in Dissertation Committee form to the EdD Program Office.

III. Candidacy

After completing a minimum of 36 quarter hours and at least three research courses (SCG 775, 785, and either 735 or 745), students may apply for candidacy. Students present a scholarly paper that is an analytical review of research, a thoughtful analysis of a topic in the student's area of interest, or a revised version of a paper initially prepared for a course. The committee must attest that the student is capable of satisfactorily completing the program as demonstrated by the candidacy paper. The candidacy process insures that a student's writing, analytical skills, and appropriate subject knowledge are at a level sufficient to begin the dissertation process. Should the committee membership change between the candidacy and the dissertation, the candidacy also enables potential dissertation committee members to evaluate the student's progress in his/her course of study. This can allow potential dissertation committee members to guide the student in research and thought. Students who have not filed for candidacy will not be allowed to register for the dissertation proposal or dissertation research courses (CS/A&S/ECE 849 and 859).

A meeting with the committee will be convened by the student when the candidacy paper is ready for review. (Students should work with the committee chair to determine when the paper is ready and schedule a time for the defense.) The EdD Program Assistant will arrange a room and notify the student and the committee members. At least two weeks prior to the meeting, the student will distribute the candidacy paper to the committee members for their review.

In the committee meeting, faculty will discuss with the student his or her submission, ask questions, raise theoretical and technical problems, and allow the student to respond. Following the discussion, the student will be asked to leave, and the committee will discuss whether or not the student passed candidacy. In the event that the student does not pass, the candidacy committee will discuss whether or not the student should be encouraged to stay in the program and take the candidacy again at a future date or whether the student should be encouraged to drop out of the program. The committee will call the student back into the meeting and discuss the decision with him or her, explaining why the decision was reached. In the event that the committee passes the student for candidacy, the committee members sign the Approval of Candidacy Standing form, which will be filed in the student's permanent file and forwarded to the EdD Program's Academic Advisor, who will register the student for the A&S/CS 706 course in the subsequent quarter.

IV. Dissertation Proposal

The dissertation proposal shall consist of the topic, introduction, review of the literature, and the research design. The entire dissertation committee must approve the written proposal. The chair of the committee will determine which style guide (MLA, APA, University of Chicago, Turabian, or other standard) will be used for the format of the dissertation.

In the quarter prior to the planned proposal defense, the student must register for A&S/CS/ECE 849 for the quarter in which they defend their dissertation proposals. The dissertation chair's approval is required for registration for this course.

Once the dissertation committee chair deems the proposal ready for committee review, the student distributes copies to the chair and the entire committee. The student should find a time convenient for the committee to meet for the proposal committee meeting, which should be at least two weeks after distribution of the draft proposal. The EdD Program Assistant will schedule a room for the meeting, and the student is responsible for notifying the chair and committee of the location.

The student should expect to discuss the dissertation proposal in detail in the committee meeting. In addition, the student is expected to justify the research questions and methods and be prepared to defend these in contrast to other research approaches. The committee will assist the student in developing a realistic timetable for completion of the dissertation research.

When the proposal is approved by the committee, the Dissertation Proposal Approval form (available from the EdD Program Office) is signed and submitted to the EdD Program Assistant for the student's permanent file. The student shall prepare a copy of the approved proposal for distribution to the committee members.

Research and the Local/Institutional Review Board (LRB/IRB)

All EdD students who conduct research that involves human subjects must comply with the regulations of the Institutional Review Board (IRB) at DePaul (research.depaul.edu). The IRB guidelines are updated from time-to-time in compliance with federal regulations.

The University IRB must approve any research that includes data that pertains to human subjects (people) before the research can begin. The procedure for securing University approval begins with submission of an application for IRB approval to the dissertation committee for approval. Then it is submitted to the Local Review Board (LRB) of the College of Education, which reviews the IRB application, may request revisions, and then submits it to the IRB. The dissertation proposal must also be approved prior to submitting the IRB application to the LRB.

The LRB/IRB process generally takes at least four but up to 10 weeks, depending in part on when the application is submitted and how much revision is required. Research cannot begin until approval for it is granted by the IRB.

When applicable, students must also secure research approval from school districts or other sites selected for their research and allow time for the process.

V. Dissertation

After the dissertation proposal is approved by the dissertation committee and the IRB application is approved by the IRB, the student can collect data for the dissertation. Students must continuously enroll themselves in A&S/CS/ECE 700 during the dissertation process in order to have access to DePaul University resources.

Dissertation credit is carried by A&S/CS/ECE 859. Students should submit the Independent Dissertation Research Course Request form to the EdD Program Office and the Coordinator of Advanced Programs/Academic Advisor during the quarter before the student wishes to be enrolled in the course. Students must register for this course in consultation with their chair in order to make sure that registration takes place during the quarter that the dissertation defense will take place. If a defense does not take place within two quarters of the registration date, the grade will become an irreversible F.

Students will have 10 years after first enrolling in courses to complete the dissertation. The EdD Program Committee may consider extensions. The student must complete a Request of Extension to Complete the EdD Degree form, provide a rationale for his/her request, and submit a supportive letter from his/her dissertation chair. Other requirements may pertain, or permanent ABD (All But Dissertation) status may be recommended by the EdD Program Committee.

Students work with their chair as their dissertation research and writing evolves; however, a dissertation is intended to be an opportunity to demonstrate scholarly independence. A conversation between student and chair about this working relationship is often a good idea so that expectations are clear. Generally, the chair determines when the dissertation is ready to distribute to the rest of the committee for their review and for the public defense of the dissertation.

The chair, with a one-month lead time, will schedule a public defense of the dissertation. Each student shall prepare a copy of the abstract for the EdD Program Office at the time of scheduling so that it may be duplicated for distribution to faculty and posted. The EdD Program Office will assume responsibility for scheduling a room for the public defense and announcing it to the EdD Program community (students and faculty).

The primary purpose of a dissertation is to educate the student in the processes of scholarly research and writing under the direction of members of the faculty. After the student has graduated and the dissertation is published, it serves as a contribution to human knowledge, useful to other scholars and perhaps even to a more general audience. Therefore, COE faculty have established format standards that a dissertation must meet before it receives final approval as a fulfillment of a graduate requirement. (See the Dissertation Format Guide in Appendix A.) This guide sets forth these standards. Some of the dissertation requirements are purely technical; others have been established to ensure that certain vital information is presented in an orderly, uniform manner.

The requirements in this guide apply to all COE doctoral dissertations. They are, however, designed to allow for maximum flexibility in minor matters, which vary among academic disciplines (e.g., reference formats). Thus, while you will need to comply with the specifications given here, you will also need to consult a specialized manual of scholarly style in your field or the style sheet of a leading journal. Also consult with your dissertation chair to see if s/he prefers a certain style over another (e.g., APA or University of Chicago).

Be careful if using another dissertation as a model for your dissertation. Remember that this guide is revised regularly, and you must meet current dissertation requirements. You have a fair amount of discretion with regard to style, but you must be consistent in format throughout. The dissertation should be written in clear, grammatically correct Standard American English, with words spelled and divided correctly and punctuation standard and appropriate.

VI. Graduation

DePaul holds one graduation commencement ceremony each year in the Spring. In order for EdD students to be eligible to participate in the commencement ceremony they must defend their dissertation eight weeks prior to the commencement ceremony and turn in their revised dissertation to the committee chair by May 1. Additionally, students must have proof that their dissertation has been sent to the bindery by June 1.

Students must apply for Spring graduation at the time they apply for degree conferral. Degree conferral dates are set by student records and the deadline for Spring 2015 is February 1. Students can find information about the graduation and degree conferral applications at: <http://education.depaul.edu/CurrentStudents/Graduation/index.aspx>

SAMPLE TIMELINE

This sample timeline aims to give students an idea of how the various program milestones can fit together for students who are on a full-time schedule and are striving to complete the dissertation within a certain time frame. The suggested deadlines correspond to the June commencement date, and students planning on having their degree conferred during the winter quarter should consult their academic advisor for the appropriate deadlines. Please keep in mind that this time line is merely an example; students will create their own timelines in consultation with their dissertation chairs. Furthermore, students have the flexibility to alternate between a full-time and part-time schedule as needed, and their timeline will therefore change accordingly.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR DISSERTATION CHAIRS

Dissertation chairs play an integral role in students' doctoral journey, and the following list details some of the primary roles and responsibilities associated with serving as a dissertation chair. These responsibilities are in chronological order.

1. Dissertation Chairs advise students in forming a dissertation committee. (2nd year)
2. Dissertation chairs guide students through the candidacy (2nd year), proposal (3rd year), and dissertation writing and defense processes.
3. When students are finished with the required coursework, dissertation chairs should approve registration for AS/CS/ECE 700 for the duration of the student's dissertation writing process as long as the student is actively working on his or her dissertation.
4. Dissertation chairs should approve a student's registration in AS/CS/ECE 849 (proposal) and 859 (dissertation) courses only for the quarter that the proposal and dissertation defense will take place.
5. When students are ready to defend their candidacy, proposal or dissertation, dissertation chairs should contact the EdD Program Assistant in order to schedule the respective defense and obtain the appropriate forms.
6. Once the dissertation defense is complete, dissertation chairs should give students a timeline for when the revisions should be complete. Chairs should not give students a grade for AS/CS/ECE 859 until the revisions are submitted and approved.

APPENDIX D: EDD COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

Core Courses

Six common core courses (24 quarter hours) are taken by all students, and a seventh core course is required of Early Childhood Education students. Please note that CS 704 should be taken early in one's program.

SCG 701 Philosophy of Ethics in Education (4)

This course is a philosophical investigation into the structure and meaning of ethics within education. Education, a condition for self-formation and self-other relations, is explored as a site of ethical inquiry. It is within this framework that education, which involves learning, teaching, response, and communication, is posed as a condition of ethical possibility and not merely as the vehicle through which a certain ethics gets carried out. Primary and secondary philosophical and non-philosophical literature and authors within and outside of philosophy of education will be used to study these issues.

SCG 711 Culture, Power and Education (4)

The purpose of this course is to explore and compare various positions within contemporary debates over multiculturalism and to analyze the implications these positions have for developing an understanding of schooling and education as linked to democratic public life. As a way to analyze the consequences and orientations of various multicultural perspectives, and specifically their pedagogical and socio-political intentions with respect to developing a public culture, the course will focus on the concept of "culture" as both an ideology, characterized by a specific set of assumptions and ideas, and as a practice that organizes the formation and relationship between oneself, others and the wider society. The course will examine how various multicultural positions construct racial differences: that is, how, through their particular interpretation of culture, they define the concept of race and its articulation with ethnicity, language, gender, sexuality, class, and nationality. In addition, the course will also analyze the pedagogical and socio-political consequences of different definitions of culture and how their representations of racial difference mediate complex relations of power with respect to the wider society.

CS 704 Curriculum Discourses/Perspectives over Time (4)

This course focuses on the examination of the ways in which curriculum as a field has developed over time: attention to changes in terms of how it has been defined, conceptualized; theoretical and philosophical issues; assumptions and values; as well as implications for teaching and learning. These topics will be addressed within different historical and social contexts. Readings will include primary texts by major theorists as well as secondary material including commentary and critique. A primary goal of the course is to provide students with an overview of major movements in curriculum history as a foundation for further study. This course will serve as a prerequisite for all other curriculum courses in the doctoral program.

CS 751 Curriculum for Human and Community Development (4)

This course provides a framework for thinking about how education can and cannot facilitate both human development (that is, healthy growth, learning, and maturation of individuals) and community development (that is, the creation or maintenance of healthy, safe, connected, literate, & politically enfranchised neighborhoods). The course explores contemporary theories and models of curriculum reform, school improvement, and youth and community development, notably: project and community based learning, asset-based development, participatory action research (PAR), full-service community schools, and university-assisted community schools. Additional topics explored may include: the kinds of schools, curricula, and teaching needed to best prepare all students for meaningful participation in an increasingly interconnected world; the explicit and implicit goals of current school reform efforts and how these (re-)shape civic and democratic goals of schools; how universities, schools, and communities can collaborate to push school improvement and community development; and the benefits and liabilities of hybrid school improvement/community development projects (e.g., the Harlem Children's Zone and Promise Neighborhoods).6t6

A&S 801 Leadership: Theory and Practice (4)

This course examines leadership theories from various social, psychological and philosophical perspectives – both historical and contemporary. The student will also be called upon to reflect upon contemporary practice in K-16 educational leadership settings and evaluate the efficacy of the theoretical frameworks in light of practice.

A&S 811 Assessment and Accountability (4) *For Educational Leadership and Early Childhood Education students

This course addresses the key role of leaders in educational systems for the development, articulation, implementation, and supervision of an assessment process that provides accountability for all stakeholders--students, parents, teachers, legislators, relevant communities, and governing authorities. Issues of philosophy, standards, outcomes, curricula, instrumentation, and the interconnected nature of these factors are identified as they impact the leadership role in accountability compliance. Factors related to ethical practice and social justice serve to anchor the philosophical and political parameters of the course.

SCG 721 Human Development and the Educational Process (4) *For Curriculum Studies and Early Childhood Education students

This course will examine the process of human development and learning through the ages by critically examining cross-cultural research and developmental theories designed to describe and interpret the physical, social, emotional, intellectual, and psychological processes involved. Emphasis will be placed on the range of individual, familial, environmental, and cultural factors that may enhance or inhibit human growth and development and on the critical role that human relationships play in the lifelong interactive processes of learning and growth. Considerable attention will be paid to the historical role of power, culture, class, gender and capability in defining and interpreting certain behaviors as indicators of normative development. These normative indicators will be critiqued with regard to underlying cultural assumptions and values, their function in fostering and maintaining current social, educational and political relations, and their contribution to the current crises in urban education and the development of children and youth. Class participants will examine their perspective on human development and learning and explore the socio-cultural and historical bases which contribute to their underlying values and assumptions. Through multifaceted inquiry utilizing self-reflection, case studies, theoretical analyses, and child assessment and observation, participants will consider the implications for their work as educational leaders in approaching current challenges with students, parents, community, and teachers and in creating schools that will foster societal change to support the healthy development of children and youth.

CS 754 Curriculum Theorizing: Multiple Lenses (4)

This course examines diverse curriculum discourses, historical as well as contemporary, within a broader context of issues related to education and schooling. It is designed to engage students critically in the study of curricular frameworks, their assumptions, values, and implications for education, schooling, teaching and learning. Major topics include: frameworks for defining and conceptualizing curriculum and curricular visions; social, political, and historical contexts of curriculum construction; issues of gender, race, class, ableness, and the media; the curriculum as socially constructed, and historically contextualized discourse(s) about what is and what should be taught. Particular content areas will be used as examples.

CS 761 Assessing School Curriculum (4)

This course develops a framework for assessing the content, characteristics, and outcomes of the curriculum in a school. The framework will include the collection, organization and analysis of both quantitative and qualitative measures of effective instruction. Particular attention will be given to local, state, and national standards for content, teaching and outcomes. Attention will also be given to the qualities of the lived experiences of students in school and thus to the unintended as well as intended outcomes of schooling. Each student will be expected to begin assessing the curriculum in his or her school and to outline a proposal for a more complete assessment of the school's curriculum.

CS 764 Ideology, Culture, and Society: Youth Development (4)

This course examines the ideological significance of "youth," youth development, and education in societies characterized by structural inequalities based on class, race, ethnicity, and sexual/gendered relations of domination and subordination. Texts from a range of academic disciplines -- psychology, sociology, cultural studies, social work -- are studied to show the influence these perspectives have had in shaping discourse about youth, youth development, and education as a vehicle for social reproduction and social change. Youth and education are looked at as the locus of arguments about social crises and social change and the impacts of framing social problems as educational and youth problems are explored.

CS 774 Engaging in Curriculum Deliberation (4)

This course engages students in systematic and collaborative deliberation on curriculum problems. A pattern for deliberation—including situation analysis, problem discrimination and formulation, development of alternative courses of action, and anticipation of consequences—will be developed, exemplified, and contrasted with other descriptions of curriculum development. The importance and role of alternative conceptions of learners, of situations, and of knowledge structures within disciplines will be emphasized. After engaging in simulated deliberations, each student will be asked to examine the intellectual commitments underlying this approach to curriculum change, to reconsider his or her role as a curriculum leader in a school or other educational setting, and to develop realistic plans for engaging a particular school community in collaborative curriculum deliberation.

CS 784 Curriculum and Program Design (4)

This course studies principles underlying the design of effective, coherent, and comprehensive instructional programs. Topics include: the design and organization of core courses of study and related curricular components; the associated staff development program; and alignment with local, state, and national mandates. Particular attention will be given to planning for diversity, including differences in learning styles, special needs, culture, and language.

CS 794 Special Topics: Curriculum (4)

In order to assure that the program remains flexible, responsive to the needs of students, and inclusive of the areas of interest of both faculty and students, this variable topics course will provide an opportunity for critical examination of compelling topical issues related to education.
